For teachers: how the cards fit together

Guide

Each card follows the same rhythm: an opening question, a hands-on activity without screens, a discussion, a short game, and an exit ticket. The table shows how each card connects to two international frameworks.

Three tips

- Talk about AI as a tool: say “the AI predicts” or “the AI produces”, not “the AI thinks” or “the AI wants”. The robots on the cards are only symbols.
- Start from what students already believe. The opening question is there to bring out their ideas, including wrong ones, before the activity.
- Use the exit tickets (last pages) to see what each student took away. They take two minutes.

Your phone sends it through the internet.

It travels through cables, even under the sea.

5

The answer travels back to you, in seconds.

Did you know? A data centre uses a lot of electricity, and often water, to keep its computers cool.

Three AI answers

Sheet 6A

Question: “What is the biggest animal that has ever lived?”

A

“The biggest animal that has ever lived is the blue whale. It can be about 30 metres long.”

B

“The biggest animal ever was the Tyrannosaurus rex, which was over 40 metres long and weighed 200 tonnes.”

C

“The biggest animal is the elephant, because it is the biggest animal you can see in a zoo.”

Answer key (for the teacher)
A is correct (blue whale). B sounds scientific but is false: T. rex was about 12 m long. C uses a weak reason. B is the most dangerous: it sounds the most expert.

Four texts: who wrote them?

Sheet 12A

Underline clues of a personal voice. Circle clues of typical AI style.

A

On Saturday my little sister tried to make pancakes for breakfast. She used salt instead of sugar. Dad ate one anyway and said it was “interesting”. We laughed for ten minutes.

B

Breakfast is often considered the most important meal of the day. It provides energy and essential nutrients. Furthermore, a balanced breakfast can improve concentration at school.

C

Football is a popular sport enjoyed by millions of people around the world. It promotes teamwork, fitness and friendship. In conclusion, football has many benefits.

D

We lost 3–0 and it was raining sideways. My boots were full of mud. But in the last minute I almost scored, and the goalkeeper gave me a high five.

Answer key (for the teacher)
All four texts were written for this activity to show typical clues. A and D have a personal voice (details, feelings, small events). B and C have a typical AI style (general, formal, “in conclusion”). Real texts are often much harder to tell apart.
